CHINOISERIE CHIC

1. Thursday, October 28, 11:00 a.m.

From the Courts of Europe to the China Cabinets of California: 400 Years of Chinoiserie and Japonisme in European Ceramics

Christina Prescott Walker, Senior Vice President, Department Director, Chinese Works of Art and Head of European Ceramics and Chinese Export Porcelain, Sotheby's, New York Chinese and Japanese decorative arts, which came to Europe starting in the 17th century via the East India trading companies, had a profound effect on European decorative arts, and in particular on ceramics as manufacturers sought to emulate and imitate porcelain. Walker will trace the assimilation and interpretation of Chinese motifs, exemplified by the humble and ubiquitous Staffordshire blue-and-white pottery Willow Pattern along with interesting recent examples of Chinoiserie.

In collaboration with The San Francisco Ceramic Circle.

2. Thursday, October 28, 2:30 p.m. Book-signing to follow.

ChinaQuake: China and World Fashion Today

John S. Major, Former Professor at Dartmouth College, Scholar, and Author, New York Chinese fabrics and styles have inspired Western fashion designers throughout the 20th century, for example Paul Poiret and Yves Saint Laurent. After illustrating such creations, Major, co-author of China Chic: East Meets West (Yale University Press, 1999), will consider the impact of China's influence today: how contemporary Chinese-American designers such as Derek Lam, Anna Sui, Vera Wang, and Jason Wu have enlivened the fashion scene; China as the leading manufacturer of clothing, and the future of Chinese fashion.

In collaboration with the Asian Art Museum, with an Introduction by Dany Chan, Assistant Curator of Chinese Art and Co-Curator of the exhibition Shanghai: Art of the City.

3. Friday, October 29, 11:00 a.m. Book-signing to follow.

Chinoiserie at Court: The Influence of China in the Arts of 18th-Century Europe

Her Royal Highness Princess Michael of Kent, Member of the British Royal Family, Author, Lecturer, and Interior Designer, London

China became not only an inspiration but an obsession in a number of European courts in the mid 1700s. Princess Michael, author of several books about European royal history, most recently The Serpent and the Moon: Two Rivals for the Love of a Renaissance King (Simon and Schuster, 2005), will show the effects of this influence in the arts and highlight the key personalities, such as Catherine the Great and Marie-Antoinette, who promoted the current taste for Chinoiserie.

In collaboration with the French Heritage Society and The Royal Oak Foundation.

4. Friday, October 29, 2:30 p.m. Book-signing to follow.

"Mandarin only is the Man of Taste": Chinoiserie in Britain, 1650-1820

David Beevers, Keeper of the Royal Pavilion, Brighton

Chinoiserie in Britain was at its height in the late 17th and mid-18th centuries, with a magnificent flourish in the early 19th century as exemplified by the dazzling interiors of the Royal Pavilion, Brighton. Bringing to life the fantastical decorative schemes created there for King George IV, Beevers, curator of the exhibition Chinese Whispers: Chinoiserie in Britain 1650-1930 (co-author of the accompanying catalogue, 2008), will trace the enthusiasm for this hybrid aesthetic as expressed in English furnishings and interiors.

In collaboration with the The Royal Oak Foundation and Sir John Soane's Museum Foundation.

DESIGNER SATURDAY

In collaboration with The Northern California Chapter of the Institute of Classical Architecture & Classical America and the San Francisco Design Center.

5. Saturday, October 30, 11:00 a.m. Book-signing to follow.

Billy Baldwin: America's King Cotton Decorator

Adam Lewis, Interior Designer and Author, New York

Sharing the discoveries featured in his new book, Billy Baldwin: The Great American Decorator (Rizzoli, 2010), Lewis will recount Baldwin's privileged upbringing in Baltimore, his decorating career in New York City, and his meritorious rise to international fame, and shed new light on this design legend. His classical, clean, and colorful style will be shown in interiors he created for a star-studded clientele, including Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, Babe Paley, and other tastemakers.

6. Saturday, October 30, 2:30 p.m. Book-signing reception to follow.

Bringing the Past to the Present and Beyond

Bunny Williams, Interior, Furniture, and Accessories Designer, and Author, New York At this exclusive San Francisco launch of her latest book, Scrapbook for Living (Stewart, Tabori & Chang, 2010), renowned designer Bunny Williams will share her creative ways to design and personalize interior spaces. Room by room, she will discuss how to blend antiques with contemporary design, drawing on her knowledge of the decorative arts and her vast experience.

CHINOISERIE

Rococo to Eco

Consulting Curator: Maria Santangelo Co-Curator: Holland Lynch

CHINOISERIE—Western art that incorporates or imitates Eastern design elements and techniques—has been a popular artistic conceit across numerous styles of the last 400 years. Asian motifs real and imagined, such as pagodas and birds, have adorned all manner of architecture, interiors, decorative and fine arts. From the 17th century on, increased trade between Europe and China fueled enthusiasm for all things exotic, loosely termed "Oriental." Continuing through the 18th-century English country house taste, 20th-century Art Deco, and modern interpretations, the examples displayed at the show, drawn from private and public collections and participating dealers, illustrate the fantasy and charm of this appealing aesthetic.

The 2010 theme was inspired by and organized as part of the Shanghai Celebration: A Year of Shanghai by the Bay (www.ShanghaiCelebration.com).
